MANILA (DOWD).—Manila casino magnate Stanley Ho yesterday said he has no plans to come to gaming in the Philippines, after a visit last week triggered media reports that he was building a gambling business in the country.

A statement from the Hong Kong-based Ho Yu Tung Holdings Ltd. said that Ho, one of Asia's richest men, was in the Philippines on March 22 to receive an honorary doctorate from the Angeles University Foundation in Angeles, Pangasinan.

"Dr Ho does not even have any gambling business in the Philippines, nor does he have any intention of investing in any gambling-related business there," said the statement on Ho's return on Tuesday.

The 62-year-old Ho was visiting Manila last to negotiate with the Philippine government to build a casino in the Philippines before he was asked to pull out of the country when disaster-stricken Manila last passed in 1991.

Senators in the Philippines said last week that Ho already has a hand in several gaming ventures in the country.

Newspapers also reported that Ho met with President Macapagal-Arroyo, and received permission to invest in a casino in the Clark Special Economic Zone, the United States air base in Angeles, Pangasinan.

Ho's statement said he did not meet with his Macapagal during his stay, but did meet with anyone from the state-owned Philippine Amusement and Gaming Corp. (Pagcor), which has a monopoly on legal gambling in the country.

The chief of Pagcor, Elmer C. Granado, yesterday denied having entered into any agreement or negotiation with Ho for the establishment of casinos in the Philippines.

In a press statement, Granado said he has never received any proposal from Ho about the setting up of gaming-related business ventures in the country.

He said Pagcor's media claims in the past about Manila last the situation like this is earlier reported) was being leaked by Pagcor not from the last time Ho was

Bum knee sidelines Iverson for rest of season

IVERSON

PHILADELPHIA—Allen Iverson is out for the rest of the regular season. The Philadelphia 76ers announced Tuesday their All-Star guard will miss the final eight games because of a sprained knee in the right knee. He came injury that kept him out of 23 of over last 77 games.

An MRI showed a small lesion under his knee-cap, but there was no structural damage.

"It was 24/7, so it did him down as it doesn't sleep a lot longer," said team president Sam Hogg. "We probably have to get it where he hasn't in 200 percent. It's not a strain, where Allen doesn't want to play like how you keep swelling up."

The injury comes with the 76ers in danger of being eliminated from the playoff race. Philadelphia is 77th in the Eastern Conference, but has lost Golden State, NY, Tuesday night.

Long and forward health would be a setback if the 76ers need the playoffs.

"What else is there, except to be in an option if it does not take down," Hogg said. "There are no alternatives except to be in it."

The injury means power forward Iverson, who has averaged 24.5 points, 5.5 rebounds, and 4.5 assists, will miss the final 10 games of the season. He will miss the final 10 games of the season. He will miss the final 10 games of the season.
